

American Impressionism: The Lure of the Artists' Colony Lecture Series

This comprehensive exhibition features, for the first time, one of The Museum's greatest strengths—its collection of works by American Impressionists. Arranged according to the artists' colonies that played a critical role in the development of American Impressionism, this exhibition examines those at Cos Cob and Old Lyme in Connecticut; Cape Cod and Cape Ann, and Rockport, in Massachusetts; New Hope and Philadelphia; as well as New Mexico and California. The exhibition will be on view at The Reading Public Museum from September 24, 2011 through January 29, 2012. The Museum is pleased to present the following lecture series in conjunction with this important exhibition:

Is There an "Ism" in Pennsylvania Impressionism?
