Patrick McGrath Muñiz: Recolecciones/Recollections

May 31 – August 24, 2025

The title of this project, Recolecciones / Recollections, immediately invokes the bilingual realm in which these works live. In English, “Recollections” often refers to the personal act of remembering—memories plucked from the past and brought into the present. The Spanish term “Recolecciones,” however, can also imply a process of gathering or harvesting, suggesting a more collective, deliberate effort to retrieve what has been sown over time. This subtle linguistic difference reflects the layered themes Muñiz explores: the interplay between personal and cultural memory, the yearning for a lost past, and the ongoing process of reassembling meaning from fragments.

The exhibition includes over 20 painted altarpieces, canvases and drawings which are testaments not only to the resilience of memory, but also to the fragility of what we hold dear. In the aftermath of Hurricane Maria, Muñiz lost both his studio and the childhood home that had sheltered so many of his earliest creative impulses. The storm underscored the impermanence of physical structures, just as it forced him to confront the ephemeral nature of memory and history. In these works, the artist looks both within—through the intimate recollection of a past life on an analog island, as well as his lost works—and outside, grappling with the collective challenges of a global era shaped by climate change, shifting political fault lines, and rampant consumer culture.

Patrick McGrath Muñiz (American, b. 1975), Apotheosis, 2024, oil and gold leaf on panel, 42 x 26 inches, Loan, courtesy of the artist

About the Artist

Patrick McGrath Muñiz is a Puerto Rican artist currently based in Texas. His artistic practice primarily focuses on drawings, retablo paintings, and tarot cards, inspired profoundly by a personal deck of tarot recovered from his childhood home and studio in Puerto Rico following Hurricane Maria in 2017. Muñiz's work integrates elements of Spanish colonial iconography, American pop culture, and tarot symbolism, layered intricately with personal narratives and collective memories. Through these compositions, he critically examines the enduring colonial legacies embedded within contemporary consumer culture.

Her Brush, Her Story: Women Watercolorists

June 21 – August 17, 2025

Cynthia W. Iliff (American, 1907 – 1998), Arranging Flowers, watercolor on paper, 27 1/2 x 31 3/4 inches, Museum Purchase, 1934.31.1

Drawn from the permanent collection of the Reading Public Museum, this exhibit gathers over forty watercolors from the late nineteenth century through contemporary times in the Works on Paper Gallery. The medium of watercolor was traditionally associated with women painters because it was clean, light, inexpensive, widely available, and could be taught as a pastime in the home or at school. However, the artists featured in this exhibition broke out of that traditional mold, becoming teachers in art schools and universities, exhibiting regularly in museum exhibitions, and building successful careers.

The exhibit features landscapes, still lifes, portraits, cityscapes, and industrial scenes. Works by women with national reputations like artist/illustrator Cynthia Iliff (1907 – 1998), Ethelyn Pratt Cobb (1884 – 1973), and Irene Aunio (1919 – 2013), as well as artists who have local ties to Reading and southeastern Pennsylvania like Mary Baer Hiester (1872 – 1946), Mary B. Leisz (1876 – 1935), Hazel Feltman (1916 – 1980), and Elizabeth Hurwitz (1903 – 1975), among others, will be examined.

The Museum Receives Reaccreditation from the American Alliance of Museums

The Reading Public Museum (RPM) is thrilled to announce that it has again achieved accreditation by the American Alliance of Museums, the highest national recognition afforded to our nation's museums. Accreditation signifies excellence to the museum community, to governments, funders, outside agencies, and to the museum-going public. RPM has been accredited since 1982. All museums must undergo a reaccreditation review at least every 10 years to maintain accredited status. Of the nation's estimated 33,000 museums, roughly 1,100 are currently accredited, only 3%.

Alliance Accreditation brings national recognition to a museum for its commitment to excellence, accountability, high professional standards, and continued institutional improvement. Developed and sustained by museum professionals for over fifty years, the Alliance's museum accreditation program is the field's primary vehicle for quality assurance, self-regulation, and public accountability. It strengthens the museum profession by promoting practices that enable leaders to make informed decisions, allocate resources wisely, and remain financially and ethically accountable to provide the best possible service to the public.

"It is an incredible privilege for The Museum to receive re-accreditation," remarked Geoffrey K. Fleming, RPM's Executive Director & CEO. "The Museum has been accredited by AAM for nearly a half century, and we, as a board and staff, are dedicated to maintaining the highest level of professional operation," he continued.

Accreditation is a very rigorous but highly rewarding process that examines all aspects of a museum's operations. To earn accreditation, a museum first must conduct a year of self-study, and then undergo a site visit by a team of peer reviewers. AAM's Accreditation Commission, an independent and autonomous body of museum professionals, considers the self-study and visiting committee report to determine whether a museum should receive accreditation.

"Accreditation is a monumental achievement," said Marilyn Jackson, AAM President & CEO. "The process demonstrates an institution's commitment to best practice and is flexible enough to be accomplished by museums of any size."

About the American Alliance of Museums

The American Alliance of Museums (AAM) is the only organization representing the entire museum field, from art and history museums to science centers and zoos. Since 1906, AAM has been championing museums through advocacy and providing museum professionals with the resources, knowledge, inspiration, and connections they need to move the field forward. For more information, visit aam-us.org.

Museum Appoints Ashley Houston as Director of Development

The Foundation for the Reading Public Museum is pleased to announce the appointment of Ashley J. Houston to the position of Director of Development. Houston, previously serving as Director of Collections and Exhibitions, made the transition from the Curatorial Department to Development on April 1, 2025.

As Director of Development, Houston will call upon her far-reaching knowledge of The Museum’s collection and exhibitions, existing connections with Museum supporters, and extensive understanding of The Museum’s operations to build, maintain, and strengthen The Museum’s relations with corporate sponsors, individual donors, members, and the community. A team of staff in internal and external events, grant writing, and community relations roles will round out the newly created Development Department. With the goal of supporting and securing the financial and long-range feasibility of The Museum, Houston and her team will continue a rigorous schedule of community favorite events and fundraisers while exploring new opportunities to collaborate and share The Museum’s mission with Berks County and beyond.

Ashley Houston, Director of Development

Houston commented: “Serving the community through my work at the Reading Public Museum is an honor beyond measure. The quality and importance of The Museum’s collections and exhibitions, and the value that it adds to our community, cannot be overstated. I believe deeply in the enrichment of lives through art, and museums as a place of learning, growth, and enjoyment for all ages. As I step into my new role as Director of Development, I look forward to leading the charge to secure support for The Museum, allowing it to remain a cornerstone of our community for generations to come.”

Admission Prices to Increase July 1

Like many institutions across the country, RPM has been hit with higher prices for everything we do, from the cost of exhibitions to art supplies. It has been more than a decade since our last admission price increase, and while we do not relish raising prices, it is time for us to do so. RPM has never received general tax support from Federal, State, County, or City governments. We rely on admissions, grants and donations to keep the doors open. In preparing our increase, we studied the admission prices of other institutions in our region were charging and spent a great deal of time debating internally on where we should land. We finally landed on a modest increase which still keeps us as one of the most affordable options for all visitors, but especially for families.

The cost of Museum Membership is not changing at this time, and Members will continue to enjoy free unlimited Museum and Neag Planetarium admission. Free admission passes can also be checked out from many local libraries

Golfin' in the Galleries: A Swinging Success

Once again, Golfin' in the Galleries was a hole-in-one success, marking our first signature event and fundraiser of 2025! On Valentine's Day, over 100 Museum Members and supporters took on the challenge of an 18-hole miniature golf course while enjoying The Museum's collection. The event raised funds to help RPM continue its mission of education, engagement, and enlightenment in our community.

A big thank you to everyone who participated in the event through donations and sponsorship: The Breidegam Family Foundation, The Stevens & Lee Companies, Berkshire Systems Group Inc., Masano Bradley, Tompkins Community Bank, The Haverford Trust Company, Securitas, Herbein, Brentwood Industries, Pagoda Electrical, CrossKeys Insurance, First National Bank, and Zerbe Photography.

Letter from the Director

It was quite nice to have such an easy winter this year, not too snowy and not too cold, with a few very warm days mixed in. But that is all now past as spring explodes across the Arboretum – blooms of every color and variety are starting to make themselves known to the world. Our incredible Arboretum Volunteers have returned for the season with several new members aboard – every Wednesday you will see them working hard to make the grounds look wonderful. If you encounter them on a visit, give them a big "thank you"! We could not keep the grounds up without them!

Geoffrey K. Fleming

We are currently getting ready to switch out our spring shows for the summer exhibitions. This year, we will feature Toytopia – a heartfelt look back at the toys and games that occupied our childhoods. It will be a fun stroll down memory lane for adults while also offering some entertaining and engaging aspects for children of all ages. We will also feature an important exhibition of artworks by the Puerto Rican-American artist, Patrick McGrath Muñiz. Entitled Recolecciones/Recollections, the show will include paintings and drawings based on 17th-19th century religious retablos popular in the Spanish colonial empire. In this case, Muñiz's works will feature many modern themes and popular culture references hidden within.

The final summer show, Her Brush, Her Story: Women Watercolorists, will include watercolor paintings by notable and regional American women painters associated with the Pennsylvania region. Unlike many other museums, RPM began collecting the works of women artists very early in its existence, adding pieces to its permanent collection from 1913 onward. Often, we purchased works directly from the major annual exhibitions at PAFA and the Philadelphia Watercolor Club, allowing The Museum to grow its holdings by women artists, something we have continued to this day. This exhibition will showcase approximately forty works from The Museum's collection, highlighting some of the best practitioners working in the field.

In addition to all of the above, please enjoy some of the new seasonal offerings at the Neag Planetarium and come take a look at two new, special additions to our grounds. The Robert W.F. Ciferri Sensory Garden, honors a long-time employee and volunteer at The Museum and features a beautiful kinetic sculpture by Pennsylvania artist Jeff Kahn. Second, the center bridge over Wyomissing Creek, which had been closed for years, has now been fully rebuilt. Many thanks to the County of Berks and its Commissioners for providing special grant funding to make its restoration possible!

See you at The Museum soon!

Geoffrey K. Fleming
